The leading essay, The Philosophy of Memory, is an effort to establish the wave or vibration theory of mind. It treats of the common force of nature in its relation to the vital force; the nature of the soul, its possible or probable origin, and its relation to vital manifestations; the nature of mind and conscious as well as subconscious mental activities; of memory as the result of vibrations persistent in the brain cells; of the resemblance between the cast of memories and of the external activities that arouse them, and of the process by which thoughts, ideas, and emotions are evolved, directed, and preserved; of mind-reading and telepathy; of grouping of vibrations as the source of our conceptions of beauty and truth, and of the law of form in art and conduct; and finally of the religious feeling as related to and arising out of the gentlest and mildest of the undulations of the ether. The second essay, The Philosophy of Emphasis, is a supplementary essay closely related to The Philosophy of Memory, and applies the vibratory theory to elocution and the laws of vocal expression. The Functions of the Fluid Wedge, or The Philosophy of Sphere-forming, treats of...
