Excerpt: . . . to be benefited in the long run by constituting himself a hypocrite. The mans black eye flashed on me a look of thanks and approbation. Oh, said the baker, I dont mean him to be a hypocrite, but truly religious, you know. If this man will be advised by me, I said, he will keep himself clear of the true religion that is purposely put on some morning to make himself friends. Yes, said the poor man pithily, not that at no price! In my enthusiasm at his answer, and the manner of it, I gave him--sixpence! and inquired into his case. He had been a baker for some time, met with an accident, and had to let his leg be taken, after trying over eight years to keep it. Meanwhile his grandfather died, leaving him a small property worth AOL a year, which...
