GAO reviewed the Air Forces and Navys policies and procedures for procuring aviation spare parts, focusing on whether their requirements and budgets reflect the amounts they actually need. GAO found that: (1) the Air Force and Navy budgeted 132 million more than needed for aviation spare parts because they used questionable policies to determine their requirements and assign accountability for depot maintenance assets; (2) the Air Force did not include 72 million of its on-hand assets in preparing its fiscal year (FY) 1996 budget request; (3) the Navy twice counted 60 million in depot maintenance requirements when preparing its FY 1997 budget request; (4) Air Force and Navy computation errors were a result of unsupported and incorrect maintenance replacement rates, demand rates, planned program requirements, repair costs, lead times, due-out quantities, and asset quantities on hand and on order; and (5) errors found in the sample items reviewed totalled 35 million and resulted in some requirements being overstated by as much as 25 million and some being understated by 10 million. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
